Letterboxd

The Challenge

Letterboxd wanted to scale its advertising efforts using a data-driven approach that maximized its ad inventory monetization while driving new premium demand without compromising user experience.

The Solution

Letterboxd partnered with Playwire for their combination of full-stack technology, analytics, and direct sales expertise.

490% Increase

Letterboxd experienced a dramatic 490% increase in overall revenue across header bidding, direct deals, DMP-based targeting, and more.

243% Reduction

Following the increase, moving their app monetization strategy to Playwire, Letterboxd realized an additional 243% YoY revenue increase compared to their previous App Provider.

ABOUT LETTERBOXD

Letterboxd is a global social network for grassroots film discussion and discovery. It can be used as a diary to record and share opinions about films as someone watches them, or just keep track of films that were seen in the past. It allows users to showcase favorites on their profile page, rate, review, and tag films as they add them

SCALING ADVERTISING EFFORTS

Letterboxd is the global social networking site for movie enthusiasts. Their team had been running programmatic advertising and direct sales themselves, but weren't able to secure premium sponsorships nor effectively scale programmatic to the level they knew was possible. And while Letterboxd had collected a significant amount of data about their visitors, they weren't using it to segment their audience or support audience targeting for their advertisers.

Letterboxd wanted to scale its advertising efforts using a data-driven approach that maximized its ad inventory monetization. They also wanted to drive new premium demand without introducing additional operational costs or compromising user experience.

Following the incredible results Letterboxd saw after moving to Playwire for their web publishing efforts, the team then moved management of their app monetization strategy over to Playwire.

"We saw results immediately and have seen both premium demand and programmatic revenue from their killer combination of direct sales and full-stack revenue amplification."
